SOCIAL REFORMS URGED TO REMEDY MACHINE AGE EVIL

Danger of Violent Revolution Is Not Past But May Be Minimized by Intelligent Action, President's Committee Reports

PAY LEVEL SEEN AS INADEQUATE

Death Rate Cited as Proof That Lower Classes of Earners Do Not Receive a "Living Wage."

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The president's research committee on social trends, after three years' study, reported tonight that there "can be no assurance" that "violent revolution" in America can be averted, "unless there can be a more impressive integration of social skills and fusing of social purposes than is revealed by recent trends."

The committee's findings emphasized that the group did not wish to assume an attitude of alarmist irresponsibility, but added that it would be "highly negligent" to ignore imminent perils in further advance of our heavy technical machinery over crumbling roads and shaking bridges.

"There are times," the committee reported, "when silence is not neutral, but assent."

The research was financed by the Rockefeller Foundation and more than 500 investigators throughout the country took part in it. The findings are published in two volumes of 1,505 pages.

President Hoover, who appointed the committee in 1929, said in a foreword:

"It (the report) should serve to help all of us to see where social stresses are occurring and where social efforts should be undertaken to deal with them constructively."

He also points out that the survey is the latest of a series beginning in 1921 with the report on "Social Conditions," compiled under his chairmanship.

"The report covers a multitude of subjects, from 'happiness' to technology, divorce, birth control, graft, bootlegging and international relations. Near the end of the findings, the committee reports:

Attorney Clears Books As New Year Begins

EVANSTON, Ill., Jan. 1.—(AP)—It was happy New Year for the clients of Donald R. Murray, Evanston lawyer.

His New Year cards read:

"I have confidence in 1933. All persons owing me for legal services during 1932 are hereby released from all indebtedness."

"It makes friends," he said.

KEY TO ORGANIZE COUNCIL TONIGHT, URGE ECONOMIES

Leanest Year in History Faced by City Government; New Committee Assignments Awaited.

A call for further governmental economies to keep Atlanta financially sound, and appointment of committees for 1933 will feature the reorganization meeting of council at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the city hall.

Mayor James L. Key, as he starts the third year of his four-year term, is expected to urge additional economies to reduce the tax burden of citizens who cannot now meet their obligations.

Atlanta's board of education also will organize for the new year at a meeting scheduled for 3 o'clock this afternoon at the city hall. There are three candidates for the presidency of the board.

U. S. MARINES QUIT NICARAGUAN SOIL AFTER 19 YEARS

Nation's Civil Leaders See 'New Deal' as American Armed Occupation Comes to Close.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The last of the United States marines who for 19 years have been a standing influence in Nicaragua's earthquake, fire, flood and revolution, were today saying their farewells.

While President Juan B. Sacasa was being inaugurated at the largest Central American republic and a guard of about 2,500 American-trained Nicaraguan guardsmen were preparing to assume the task of policing the nation, the American marines were leaving, or getting ready to depart, for home.

The United States aviation squadron commenced evacuation. The first flight of five observation planes and two transport planes under the command of Lieutenant Borden left at 7:50 a. m., eastern standard time, for Brownsville, Texas.

Dr. Sacasa and Dr. Rodolfo Espinoza, former minister to the United States and former minister of foreign affairs, were inaugurated president and vice president with colorful ceremonies. A great influx of citizens from all parts of the nation thronged the capital and joined in the parade through the arches streets.

The officials took their oaths and were inducted into office at the parade grounds at the foot of Loma hill in the presence of the entire corps, the diplomatic and consular corps, and special envoys from the pope and the government of Panama.

General Jose Moncada delivered a farewell message to a joint session of congress and then gave the ribbon and insignia of the office to the new president. President Sacasa and his family moved into the presidential mansion at the summit of Loma hill on the outskirts of Managua today.

All governmental activities heretofore will center at Campo de Marte after the evacuation of the marines. The marines have sold to the Nicaraguan government all their buildings, including various office structures, a mess hall, kitchen, bakery and hospital and medical equipment.

Marines Evacuate Nicaragua

U. S. marines

The first of the New Year marks the withdrawal of United States marines from Nicaragua. At the same time, the move is interpreted as the beginning of a new policy of dealing with Latin America, which has resulted in the evacuation of American troops. Juan Bautista Sacasa, taking office as president, still has to contend with a chieftain who looms in the background—General Augusto Sandino. The marines were dispatched to Nicaragua in 1914 when the state department gave credence to a rumor that Mexico and Russia were about to raise a "red" hegemony between the United States and the Panama canal. The Nicaraguans were in revolt at that time and still are. The United States crushed the revolution over the illegal President Diaz. The United States crushed the revolution, and then found it had destroyed the constitutional government, friendly to America. Altogether, 133 marines and approximately 4,000 Nicaraguans lost their lives in the ill-fated venture.

CAFE LOSES $750 BY DRENCHED CITY

TO ARMED BANDIT BY DRENCHED CITY

Mitchell St. Restaurant Held Up; Safe-crackers Are Frightened Away.

A $750 holdup of a downtown restaurant morning early Sunday morning and numerous smaller robberies started the new crime year in Atlanta. Tommy Malool, manager of the Broadway cafe, at 157 Mitchell street, was robbed of $750 in cash and a United States check for $23 early Sunday morning by a lone armed white man, he reported to police.

Malool said the man, dressed like a railroad employee, entered his cafe shortly after 10 o'clock Sunday morning, and made several purchases, tendering a $20 bill in payment. The manager opened the safe to make the change, he said, and turned around to find himself covered with a pistol. The bandit told Malool "I'll make the change for myself."

Safe-crackers attempted to rob the safe of the Simon Hubig Pie Company, at 541 Peachtree street, some time Saturday night or Sunday morning, according to reports.

Employees found that the knob of the strong box had been knocked off, and that a quantity of "soup" had been poured into the door. It was a small unexploded dynamite cap, with a party burned fuse, also was found. The robbers evidently were frightened away, police said.

Park pharmacy, at 588 Woodward avenue, was visited by burglars Sunday morning, and a large quantity of cash taken, it was reported. An amount of cash taken, it was reported to police. The burglars entered by twisting the lock off the front door.

Hoover Will Turn North Today After Holiday in Dixie Waters

By JOHN F. CHESTER. THE SAILFISH CLUB, PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Coming ashore for the first time after a full week of cruising and fishing, the president and Mrs. Hoover today attended services in the flower-banked Royal Poinciana chapel of Palm Beach before enjoying an afternoon cruise on the yacht.

The presidential party originally had planned a full day of cruising in nearby inland waterways before returning northward by train tomorrow. Plans were altered at the last minute, however, and finally the cruise was cancelled entirely because of bad weather.

A sudden drop in temperature last night continued in full force today, accompanied by a cold rain, and both the chief executive and first lady were bundled in coats when they came ashore.

Unhindered were the plans of Mr. and Mrs. Hoover to attend church services here that few in the chapel

ROOSEVELT HOPES FOR SWIFT ACTION IN EXTRA SESSION

President-Elect Will Assume Active Charge of Preliminary Work for Program This Week.

By THOMAS L. STOKES. WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—(UP)—President-elect Roosevelt will take over in reality this week the direction of his party forces in congress and start them to work upon a program that will be carried forward in the special session to be called soon after March 4.

Active Roosevelt management will be inaugurated at the conference to which the next president has called democratic congressional leaders in New York Thursday, two months before his formal induction into office.

The president-elect's purpose is to clear the board as far as possible at the short session. But realizing now, as do his leaders, that enactment of a complete legislative program is utterly impossible in the 33 legislative days left of the short session, it is his purpose to bring forward democratic proposals and air them thoroughly in debate so that the special session may proceed expeditiously.

Both farm relief and beer legislation face virtually certain Hoover veto. Beer legislation now seems lost at the short session, though leaders still insist it is their intention to press a bill through the senate. It is doubtful also that farm relief bill can clear legislative hurdles in the White House.

Roosevelt's active assumption of leadership is understood to be dictated partly by sporadic republican criticism, which may be expected to grow unless checked, that democrats lack a program. A clearly defined program is needed to guide the new administration.

Republicans seized their opportunity to criticize last week when house democratic leaders decided to bring forward the once-rejected sales tax as a means of balancing the budget, only to meet the opposition of their chief in this form of levy. Democrats immediately produced the proposed revenue bill, which they hoped would be a counter measure to save money and balance the budget.

The conference Thursday, at which Roosevelt will outline his program, will come simultaneously with movement on all congressional fronts, in committee and on the floor, designed to get the framework up.

To Report Bill. The house agriculture committee is expected to report to the house a domestic animal plan bill which would give the farmer a bounty to bring his prices up to their pre-war level by levying a tax on processors.

Drinking Is Widespread At U. of Pennsylvania

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 1.—(UP)—Two out of every three co-eds at the University of Pennsylvania drink intoxicating beverages, according to a survey just completed by Kenneth W. Connors, graduate research student, and published in the alumni magazine of the university.

"Among the male students," he said, "we found that three out of every five drink occasionally and that one out of five is a steady drinker. The co-eds usually drink only socially."

SENATE PLEDGED TO SPEEDY ACTION ON BEER PROPOSAL

Leaders of Smaller Chamber Also Promise Early Consideration of Repeal Legislation.

By NATHAN ROBERTSON. WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Swift consideration, beginning tomorrow, of beer and prohibition repeal legislation is promised by senate leaders.

A meeting of the senate judiciary committee has been called for tomorrow to begin consideration of the house 3.2 per cent beer bill, and the subcommittee framing a repeal resolution will be summoned within a day or two.

Should absence of a quorum, because of the legal holiday, again block action tomorrow on the beer bill, Chairman Norris has announced he will call another meeting early this week.

With the senate returning to work Tuesday, he should have no difficulty then in obtaining the necessary majority to a vote.

The repeal subcommittee is near an agreement on the wording of a resolution to wipe the eighteenth amendment off the statute books, and members of the group predicted they would be able to report within a few days.

Their tentative draft provides protection for dry states from surrounding wet territory and gives Congress authority to legislate against return of the saloon.

The only remaining question is the manner of submitting the resolution to the states. Some members of the subcommittee prefer to have it acted upon by state conventions, while others want it sent to the state legislatures.

Chairman Blaine plans to call a meeting of the subcommittee Tuesday or Wednesday, to discuss where it will be held before the Christmas recess.

Virtually every member of the committee who has been in the capital during the recess has expressed himself in favor of swift action on the beer bill.

Another expression of this kind came today from Senator King, of Utah, democratic member of the committee, who said the senate would be derelict in its duty if it did not bring the beer bill to a vote.

A disposition to let the bill come to a vote quickly in its present form has developed among some opponents of the measure.

The president, though, has refused to make public comment on the measure.

Woman Cuts Throat, But Doesn't Know Why

Adams To Take Office As Farm Head Today

One of two attempted suicides Sunday was the first case treated at Grady hospital in the new year.

Mrs. H. Wike, 23, of 450 Pulliam street, who slashed her throat with a razor blade, was admitted to the hospital at 12:05 o'clock Sunday morning, according to hospital officials.

The woman, who was visiting her husband at a fruit stand on Ponce de Leon avenue, said she had no idea why she cut herself. She said she was visiting her husband at a fruit stand on Ponce de Leon avenue, said she had no idea why she cut herself.

TWO WOMEN DIE AS CRACK TRAIN PLOWS INTO CAR

Mrs. S. C. Adams and Her Daughter, Miss Chessie Adams, Hurlled to Instant Death When Auto Is Demolished, Dragged.

CAMPBELL RHEA, 30, SLIGHTLY INJURED

Attempt To Beat Fast Southern Train Over Northside Drive Crossing Blamed for Crash.

A mother and her daughter were instantly killed, and a man was injured in Atlanta's first automobile fatality of the new year.

The tragedy occurred on a grade crossing on Northside Drive near the Hemphill avenue pumping station of the Atlanta waterworks.

Those dead were identified as: Mrs. S. C. Adams, 60, of 71 Peachtree avenue.

Miss Chessie Adams, 25, her daughter, of the same address.

The injured man is Campbell Rhea, 30, also of 71 Peachtree avenue.

Rhea was taken to the Crawford Long Memorial hospital where he regained consciousness after an examination. Dr. B. H. Clifton said he did not believe Rhea was seriously hurt. Dr. Clifton said he found no broken bones or fractures and the man's injuries apparently were confined to bruises, scratches and minor cuts. He said "general condition is good."

According to first reports of the tragedy, Southern railway train No. 30, running between the Terminal and Peachtree stations, struck the car in which Mrs. Adams, her daughter and Rhea were riding, when the automobile attempted to cross ahead of the locomotive, which was traveling at high "yard speed."

When ambulances from Grady hospital and Brandon Road & Condon reached the scene both mother and daughter were dead. Rhea, however, was taken to the hospital where he was being treated.

Mrs. Adams and her daughter formerly resided in Alpharetta, but had lived here for 10 years. They were members of the Peachtree Road Presbyterian church, and both had been active in its affairs. Miss Adams was educated in Alpharetta and had been connected with Davidson-Paxon's store for several years.

Mr. Rhea, who is about 30 years of age, is a native of Tennessee and was graduated from Vanderbilt University. He has been living here about a year. He has been with an insurance company. His father is prominent in Tennessee politics, it was said. He resided with the Adams on Peachtree avenue.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Rhea of Pulaski, Tenn., a brother, J. R. Rhea, Jr., of Pulaski is a Tennessee state senator and another brother, Dr. Rhea, is a physician.

The Way You Take It

By Charles J. McGuirk

INSTALLMENT III.

And she was through with worry. The Depression was recognized out here, but it wasn't considered a question of life and death. They discussed the fluctuations of the market as they did changes in the weather. And what a relief that was!

She went everywhere to bridge parties and dances. She played golf and learned early that while her game could stand a lot of improvement it hadn't left her altogether. During that first week life was such a heaven that she wonderingly asked herself why she had ever left it, for any reason whatsoever.

whatsoever. But by little by little, she began to see that either she or the life had changed since she had left it to become David's wife. Most of her friends were married. They had developed new mutual interests in their little set to which she, in spite of the fact that she had known them all so well, was necessarily a stranger. And she was neither fish nor fowl. She was not a single woman. She was married and living, either on a visit or because of some secret difficulty, away from her husband.

The m. n., when she had to notice them, did not in her opinion compare with David. One danced more smoothly, but the other danced more gracefully. They played a better game of golf, but did not possess David's powerful drive. She began to wonder about David's golfing, and she wondered whether he would think to send out his laundry and his clothes to be pressed, whether he meant what he said about the laundry, whether he was a womanizer, whether he was a womanizer. She wondered, quite impersonally, whether he ever missed her. Not that it mattered.

She woke up one morning about three weeks later as greatly worried as she had ever been while she was living with David in that closest of houses. She was lying in bed when she came fully awake she lay trying

She came fully awake and tried to think what caused the feeling. She couldn't for a long time, but she kept trying. And finally she came to a conclusion that didn't make sense. She was worried, she decided, because she had nothing to worry about and she was bored with this full, exciting and satisfactory life she had been living. And that night Uncle Ed came out to dinner.

He was delighted at what he kept insisting was the improvement in her appearance.

sets. You're mistaken about David
Uncle Ed."

Uncle Ed roared with laughter. It was good to be on your own again after nearly thirty years of marriage with a spoiled brat, and David wallowed in his aloneness for a week. He could plan his expenditures and work out the probable market trend, and there was nobody to argue with him or pour "house he didn't think he could afford to go to a theater or a night club. He could sleep late of mornings, grab the subway, and be in his office in a half-hour. He didn't have to get up at an ungodly hour, catch a train and spend an hour on it and the ferry. That was a wise poet who said, "He travels the farthest way who travels

But after the first week he began to see he wasn't traveling any farther than usual. He was going to the same places. And if he had anybody to go with he'd be glad to take him to a theater or a night club, or both. He was getting a little increasing in his intervals how Nancy was getting along. Not that it mattered! He was tempted to call her up. But she was the one who'd made the break. She'd said she'd never see him again. However, when the tenant of the house on Montclair asked to be released from his agreement to sign a contract for a day, he was offered a salary that puzzled him and he made no attempt to rent it to any one else. And that was the situation when Un-

"Nancy," Uncle Ed answered his first question, "is fine. Looks better than I've ever seen her. She's living the right kind of life. On the go all the time. You know how popular she used to be. Well, she's just as popular as ever. You see, Dave, your mistake was in cutting expenses to the bone and cutting her off from her friends, and making her live in that box of an apartment. You can't do it, no more than you could put a flower in the cellar and expect it not to wilt."

"Sure you were wrong. And you're wrong about not spending money. The trouble with you, Dave, is that you're living in the perpetual fear of being broke. And you're suffering all the evils of being broke with the fear added to it. You've let your personal appearance slip. Now if you had the kind of clothes you used to wear I could put you in with a man who

So David Winstead blossomed again in a wardrobe that made him one of the best-dressed men in the street. Winstead began saying "Winstead's on his feet again" to the fellow who had been his enemy as a "downy dresser." And Uncle Ed, with the same old twinkle in his eye, gave him the prospect's name. He neglected, however, to tell him that the prospect was an agent under Uncle Ed's inducement to buy bonds. He had exceptionally large lock of bonds for him.

"Well," Uncle Ed told him over the wire when David called to thank him for putting him in touch with the prospect to whom he had sold a large block of bonds, "you are a swell. But, you ought, to do better than that."

that you ought to do better than that," said David, "and you should pay for a part of your commission."

David asked him what he would think if he considered right.

"If you go to dinner tomorrow night," said Uncle Ed, "and the theater, and then maybe a night club with me and a woman friend as your guests,"

"I will go," said David, immediately.

Depressed for the first time since he had bought his new clothes, He wished he had—some one to bring along.

"I will go with you," said the waiter, who had been when David walked into the lounge, and it wasn't until he stepped aside that David discovered the girl was a blonde.

And Nancy, as surprised as he, saw that it was David, and knew that he was handsomer than he had ever been.

The dinner, the show, and even the night club were all a total loss to both of them, because neither of them knew where they were. All they realized was that they were together. Their attitude so annoyed Uncle Ed that he got up abruptly from the table.

"Look here," he scowled, "you two are too impolite to stay with. I'm going home. Dave, you'll have to put Nancy in a taxicab because the last train is gone. The fare is fourteen dollars. Good night!"

"David," Nancy said softly when they followed him five minutes later, "if I could sell."

"You can spend the night," David said, "but you can't go away in the morning. When you go I go with you—out to Montclair. It will cost a little more. But this is the time to spend and that closet is no place for you."

SAVE SOULS—

SHE CAME TO SAVE SOULS—AND ALL BUT LOST HER OWN!

A sensitive woman's soul, adrift and alone, slowly succumbing to fifty centuries of civilization—cultured, cynical and seductive!

Her reckless heart responds hotly, stirring strange passions in General Yen—passions he dared not recognize and yet can scarcely conceal.

Read this flaming story of fear—hate—and love; a woman's emotions and a man's ambitions clash once more in the regions beyond law.

Miss Walker and Miss Hanger Make Formal Bows at Breakfast

Miss Emily Walker and Miss Teresa Hanger, intimate friends and popular members of the season's debutante club, made their formal bows to Atlanta society at the breakfast at which their mothers, Mrs. Pressley Walker and Mrs. Herbert Hanger, entertained yesterday at the home of the former on The Prado. Guests included members of the debutante club, their escorts, and other members of the younger social contingent.

Lustrous dark green magnolia branches, banked in the corners of the reception rooms and formed an effective background for the scarlet poinsettias, red holly leaves, and white candles, which formed the keynote of the decorative scheme. A silver bowl holding red roses, narcissi, and fern centered the dining room table and five-branched silver chandeliers holding red tapers were placed at either end of the table.

Atlanta Music Club Presents Program On Wednesday Morning, January 4

Atlanta Music Club makes an auspicious beginning of the new year with a brilliant program Wednesday morning, January 4, at 10:45 o'clock in the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's Club, where a group of local artists present a program of compositions of Edward MacDowell, greatest of all American composers, commemorating his life and work.

Mrs. Howard Claude Smith Jr., president of the club and Mrs. Thos. Morrison, chairman of the morning musicale, is in charge of the program. Admission to the morning programs is 50 cents for non-members. Mrs. Armand Carroll will give a 10-minute talk on the Peterboro Colony, telling of the joy it has brought, not only to artists, but to all who have worked at Peterboro Colony.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD
Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

I am a young married woman and live very comfortably with my husband who has a good job. He has his way about everything that comes up in the home. For instance, he has decided that I should not go to work, and I am to stay at home and look after the house and children. He says that I am not doing my duty as a wife and mother, and that I am getting in the way of his work. He says that I am not doing my duty as a wife and mother, and that I am getting in the way of his work.

have his way nine tenths of the time. Just like children they are, these husbands: give them an inch and they will take a mile. In the end of self-respect you must set up some limit beyond which he may never go—else you will become a slave to his whims and fancies, and expressed, and when and if that happens, life will close in on you and you will be smothered to death.

ANSWER:

I know one exactly like him. I know two exactly like him. And the wife of each gets married to one of the way he treats her, but neither can change her husband. One handles by submitting meekly to the tyranny. The other handles her by bucking and kicking and barking her shins. In the end each is a tyrant, and a strange enough, each handles her husband as she goes. Take your choice of methods but don't fancy you can ever change your husband. If you decide to submit meekly, here are some of the things you must think about: You had a good job and independence. You were not satisfied with the way he treated you. You decided to swap them for wifedom, the pleasure and protection of a husband and a home. You now have what most women want, a home, a husband, and a home. What is it worth to you? The relinquishment of financial independence, and of every other right? If so, then the meek method is far and away the best method of dealing with such a husband. I am not recommending a spiritless submission to his will, nor a fawning whipped-dog attitude toward his every whim, but rather a quiet and dignified acceptance of the fact that you must live with a tyrant who wants his way at any cost; and a recognition of the fact that, in your home, you must let him have his way.

There are many people who will say that no self-respecting wife will make an assignment of her will to any husband. It is a wonder, for a wife deliberately to hand her will to the requirements of a tyrant husband in the hope of achieving peace and contentment, or to spend her days fighting for an equality or supremacy which she can never achieve? Like a child, she must learn to live with her husband as he is, and not as she would like him to be. She must learn to live with her husband as he is, and not as she would like him to be. She must learn to live with her husband as he is, and not as she would like him to be.

Miss Evatt, of Brookline, Mass., Will Wed Dr. John Lesh Jacobs

BROOKLINE, Mass., Jan. 1.—Social importance is attached to the announcement, made today by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Maltby Evatt, prominent Bostonians, of the betrothal of their daughter, Miss Marjorie Evatt, to Dr. John Lesh Jacobs, of New York city and Atlanta, Ga. The engagement was made known to a group of friends of the young couple at a buffet supper given this evening by Mr. and Mrs. Evatt at their home here.

The bride-elect is one of the most popular and attractive members of Boston society, having been reared against a background of culture and aristocratic lineage. She was formally presented to society by her parents during the winter of 1929-30. She is a valued member of the Junior League and has been a sought-after figure in exclusive circles since her debut.

Dr. Jacobs is the son of Dr. Thornton M. Finch, of Brookline, Mass., and is a graduate of Harvard University. He was graduated from Boys' High school and Oglethorpe University, Atlanta. Later he studied at Harvard and received his degree from the Harvard Medical School. The bridegroom-elect is engaged in medical research at the Rockefeller Institute in New York city.

The marriage of Miss Evatt and Dr. Jacobs will be an event of social importance, as it brings together two of the most prominent families of the North and South. The wedding will be held at the home of the bride's parents in Brookline, Mass., on January 10.

Senior Hadassah Plans To Hold Victory Luncheon Tuesday, Jan. 3

Mrs. Sam Sugarman, head of the luncheon committee, announces that 200 women will attend the victory luncheon of the Atlanta chapter of Senior Hadassah, to be given at the Jewish Progressive Club, at 1 o'clock, Tuesday, January 3. The affair will mark the closing of the year's membership drive, which has been conducted by chapters of the organization throughout the nation.

The chapter is competing for one of the cash prizes offered by the national board of Hadassah to the chapter obtaining the largest percentage of membership increase during the year.

At the conclusion of the luncheon program, the hands of the huge campaign clock will be turned to the new high score by the membership chairman, Mrs. L. J. Levitas. A few of the new members enlisted during the campaign are, Mesdames M. Kiesel, R. Kiesel, Emanuel M. Kiesel, Sophie Newy, S. M. Moscow, I. V. Kessler, Jack Silver, A. Kessler, Sid Thelen, P. Koplin and E. H. Lippman. The committee is composed of Mesdames Sol Roman, A. Goodman, Abe Thelen, P. Koplin and E. H. Lippman.

Hostesses will be the members of the membership committee and chairman of standing committees who will be participating in the contest, "the monthly combat," for which a prize of $100 will be awarded to the chapter most active.

The lecture will be illustrated with stereoscopic pictures of the famous paintings of the Madonna by great masters. The slides have been loaned by the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York.

The lecture is open to the public and will not only be interesting to adults but very educational to children of the high school age. Admission will be 25 cents per person.

EDUCATION MEETING IS BROUGHT TO CLOSE

Student-Faculty Conference Hears Addresses on Problems of South.

Following the closing address by President Mordecai Johnson, of Howard University, Washington, D. C., at the Congressional Christian Church Saturday night, the Southern Student-Faculty conference came to an official close with the meeting of the executive committee Sunday afternoon.

Dr. Malcolm H. Bryan, of the University of Georgia; Dr. W. A. Smart, of Emory University, and President H. A. Hunt, of Fort Valley Normal and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, were the principal speakers on the conference program. Two hundred students and faculty members from white and colored colleges in the south registered for the session, which began Wednesday night.

"A nation is fortunate that has any commonality with the possibilities of the south," Dr. Johnson said in his address on "The South of Tomorrow" Saturday night. "We are all conscious that it is the way to a new career, but it is not sure which way it is going. There is a certain 'unbookedness' about the south, a certain feeling that it has not yet put its full weight against its burden."

"One can already feel that great things are going on here," Dr. Johnson continued. "There never comes a great national evil without a great spiritual revelation. We have material and intelligence at our disposal to take care of every human need in America if all grown people work four hours a day. There must be a change. Our vision is coercive."

Opening the conference with a critique of the present situation in the south, Dr. Smart called attention to the process of change in which the south now finds itself.

"We are still too inclined to think of any divergence from our grandparent's ways as a colossal crime," Dr. Smart stated. "We are hostile to change because the south has always been agricultural there is an assumption that it always will be. We have a blind worship of a fixed, static, social condition."

Dr. Bryan spoke to the delegates on "Economic Factors in the Organization and Functioning of Society." President Hunt read a paper on educational conditions in the south. Other officers elected were: Miss Elizabeth Reed, Vassar College, vice president; and C. Girard Davidson, Tulane University, secretary.

Washington, D. C., was selected as the federation congress city in 1933. Tulsa, Okla., was another bidder for the meeting.

A resolution favoring remuneration for college football players for their services, adopted last night by a committee on athletics, was defeated today by the general congress.

The resolution was the subject of William Corbin, All-American player and delegate of Stanford University, who proposed that athletes should be awarded scholarships and not exceed a value the cost of board, room and tuition at college.

"If the remuneration of athletes is standardized in this way," Corbin said, "the bargaining power of all universities would be equal. We all know this thing is being done, so why not come out in the open and make it a fair game?"

Orville Mohler, All-American football player from the University of Chicago, also sponsored the resolution.

The congress adopted a resolution introduced by Mohler placing the federal government on record as favoring the help of alumni in providing work for athletes, so they may go to college. It stipulates that no "alumni" pressure should be brought to bear as a result.

The congress also adopted a resolution introduced by C. Girard Davidson expressing the opinion of the federation that college students should be allowed to register and vote by mail in their respective state elections. Delegates said that many states were unable to leave the campus to return to their homes to vote.

A resolution introduced by R. Murrow, of New York City, criticizing the United States department of labor for forbidding foreign students in this country from earning a living, was adopted.

Depression Is Blow To Marriage Industry
Marriages, which have been falling off steadily in the south since the depression started, registered a sharp decline in 1932, according to Claude Mayson in the ordinary of the state.

Mr. Mayson said that only 2,357 marriage licenses were issued in 1932. In 1929, the first "depression" year, 3,329 couples applied for marriage licenses; 1930 saw the number decrease to 3,255, and in 1931 there were but 3,100 who sought the marriage vows.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

A General Weekly Review of Commerce and Industry Affecting the Greater Atlanta Trade Territory

Neighborly Spirit Is Seen by Gottenstrater as Key to Business Revival

SAFE INVESTMENT CITED AS SOLUTION OF ECONOMIC ILLS

First Mutual Building and Loan Director Emphasizes Home Building as Civic Duty.

A spirit of neighborliness, linked with a plan of sound investment for the average citizen, holds the key to business revival and the solution of many present economic difficulties, declares E. W. Gottenstrater, member of the board of directors of the First Mutual Building and Loan Association, 23 Auburn avenue.

Citing the steady growth of the building and loan business in the state and nation in recent years and stressing its importance as a major factor in the civic life of the nation, Mr. Gottenstrater points to the continually growing obligation on the part of the investor and prospective home-builder to place a part of his surplus funds in such organizations.

Such investment, he asserts, forms a definite link between provision of home security and ultimate relief of present economic distress.

"The time has come," Mr. Gottenstrater declares, "when we must be more generous in our attitude toward our neighbors. All of us should be concerned about the economic life in which we live, especially so from the standpoint of the citizens owning their own homes."

Obligation to Community.
"Those of us who are able have a distinct moral obligation, to community as well as to self, to place at least a part of our surplus funds in a building and loan association. These associations serve primarily small home owners with funds for the financing of purchased homes, remodeling and modernization."

"Seemingly the majority of our citizens who are in a position to make investments of this nature have entirely overlooked the more obligation, and this lack of foresight has made it impossible for many of the small homeowners to procure the needed financing. It naturally follows that the more homeowners there are the more stability a community has, which works to the benefit of everyone."

The prosperity of a community, he points out, is based to a great extent upon the employment of its citizens, adding that "it would be a complicated if not an impossible task to trace the number of persons employed in the building, remodeling, modernization or repair of a home." The money thus spent, either directly or indirectly, returns to the community, thereby adding to that prosperity.

Purpose of Association.
"Why a building and loan association, anyway?" he asked. "These institutions must have come into being for a definite purpose. They have, but the majority of us do not quite realize how we fit into the picture. They have given us an opportunity to discharge a civic duty and at the same time receive a sound security paying dividends semi-annually. They are outstanding in that they offer a medium through which material aid can be dispensed to the citizens in the territory in which they operate, and in addition they promote thrift for a purpose. Memberships may be purchased and paid for monthly."

An investment in the First Mutual or another carefully selected building and loan association, he asserts, is by no means the imagination of a charitable donation, but instead is one of the soundest investments that can be made. In support of this statement, he points to the national record of the last 11 years, during which the safety factor in such investments has been more than 99.98 per cent.

Rabson's Commendation.
In this connection, he cites a statement recently made by Roger Rabson, nationally known economist and statistician: "The sound methods of financing with a gradual amortization which the building and loan associations were the first to inaugurate, and the almost negligible percentage of losses, taken together with the magnitude of these associations."

Invest in Homes

throughout the United States, are the results which must commend the work of these associations to serious-minded people."

"Investments in the First Mutual Building and Loan Association," Mr. Gottenstrater states, "are regulated by law, and funds received must be invested only in first mortgages, not in excess of 66 2/3 per cent of the appraised value of developed real estate, which must be located in Fulton county. An investment of this purpose serves a dual purpose: First, it gives the investors a steady income in the form of dividends, payable semi-annually, and secondly, it provides for a class of our citizens who have no other source from which to procure building loans."

Out-of-Town Investments.
"It is most surprising to know that in nearly every community the people generally invest their surplus funds in their own communities."

"There are no doubt many who have no way to obtain any definite information. At the same time, they have available in their own communities investments which would be much safer and sounder and on which they can procure first-hand and definite information."

"The First Mutual Building and Loan Association invites close scrutiny and is prepared to give specific information regarding its operations and the service it renders. It welcomes inquiries because its officers and directors are completely 'sold' on the idea that it is one of the institutions which fills a real civic need in Atlanta."

Membership may be obtained by paying a premium of 3 per cent of the amount of capital subscribed, for which a membership certificate is issued. Thereafter, the investor is offered three plans of payment: (1) Pay up the amount in full and receive the earnings each six months; (2) pay in a substantial amount and leave the account to stand until the earnings pay it up, or (3) pay monthly installments of 1 per cent of the subscription until the payments and earnings together pay it up.

In any case, the member gets the earnings of the association each six months on the amount paid in. Shares are exempt from state, county and city taxes.

Membership in building and loan associations in Georgia is pictured graphically in the last annual report of the state securities division, which shows that 41 such organizations, with a total of approximately $8,000,000, as compared with only five associations in 1923, with assets of $350,000. The increase for the year 1932 was $975,680.

Loans on Georgia real estate during 1932, at a time when it was difficult to obtain loans from any source, totaled $1,350,500. Nearly 290 new homes were built through associations in the state, and 550 were financed. The number of shareholders increased by 1,628, during that year, bringing the total to 18,419, of whom 3,887 were borrowed members.

Could You Use $300?

Who couldn't, especially in times like these! Wouldn't such a sum be mighty useful at any time? Loans made in sums up to $300.00 repayable in small monthly installments.

Bankers Urge Resolution Pledging Thrift for 1933

Georgia Savings Bank and Trust Company Suggests Two Additions to New Year's 'Promises.'

New Year's resolutions are incomplete unless they include a determination to practice thrift and to provide future security, according to officers of the Georgia Savings Bank and Trust Company—Atlanta's oldest savings institution—located in its own building at 74 Peachtree street.

They offer two suggested pledges which should be added to the forgetful resolver's list, even though tradition's annual day of resolutions is past:

"I resolve to so order my personal, social and household affairs that I shall live well within my income during the coming year."

"I resolve to adopt and adhere strictly to a definite plan of saving, which shall include deposits of a predetermined amount (or more) at regular intervals in a sound bank, not only during 1933 but through the ensuing years."

The current resolver and prospective depositor, in keeping with the latter pledge, and thereby to benefit him, the Georgia Savings Bank and Trust Company pays a semi-annually computed interest of four per cent on all general savings accounts.

The institution, never under strain during the 24 years of its existence, today points proudly to approximately $2,225,000 in savings deposits, which attest to its strength and security. It offers itself as a safe rock upon which thousands of Atlantans and Georgians have built for themselves a substantial measure of financial security and freedom themselves of constant money worries such as have beset countless of less fortunate persons in recent and present times of economic stringency.

The Georgia Savings Bank and Trust Company, in addition to its savings service, conducts a dependable trust department for the handling of estates and wills, and a safe deposit and vault department which ranks among the best equipped in Atlanta. The institution also is a member of the federal reserve system.

"It is mindful that backlogs have never been so thin, and that January will lack the sustaining rail tonnage which usually gets the month away to a good start," the magazine said in its weekly review.

"Yet there is an underlying sentiment that principal consumers of iron and steel certainly will take no more than in 1932 and probably will specify more. And, due to wage reductions and other economies, and concentration of production in low cost plants, unit costs are less than a year ago."

The industry is scheduled to open January with an operating rate of about 14 per cent, and probably will be in mid-December and possibly recovering to 15 per cent by January 7, the magazine said.

There is additional encouragement, as the year opens, from the indications that, although for a few days around Christmas, the steel rate broke through the 1932 low of 12 per cent, December as a month was not pulled down to the all-time low of August."

Cleveland mills are expected to open the week at 20 per cent, the highest in the country, largely because of automotive releases. "Pittsburgh is scheduled to expand from 10 to 12 per cent to about 14," continued the magazine. "Birmingham will rise from 10 per cent to 15-18, while eastern Pennsylvania will probably lift a point or two above the current 8-9 per cent rate. For the latter district operations of 15 to 16 per cent are forecast later in the month."

Only the automobile industry has given encouraging releases for steel orders in the last few days. Structural steel awards for the week ended today totaled 9,533 tons, about half the weekly average for the year.

October Electric Output.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—Production of electricity for public use during October totaled 7,044,063,000 kilowatt hours as compared with 6,829,000,000 in September and 7,765,000,000 in October, 1931, according to the United States Geological Survey.

Of the October, 1932, production, 1,329,361,000 kilowatt hours were produced by fuels and 2,714,702,000 by water power.

TRIPLE HOLIDAY HAMPERS COTTON

Speculative Trading at Standstill Last Week of Departed Year.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The protracted holidays the past week interfered materially with trading in the cotton market. With only four business days and with a triple holiday for the week-end there was no disposition to enter upon fresh commitments. Such trading as developed consisted of a little scalping by ring traders and moderate trade buying and price-fixing by the mills.

There was also more or less hedge selling, but purely speculative trading has been at a standstill.

Prices fluctuated narrowly and somewhat erratically. The extreme spread of fluctuations was only about 25 points and the close of the week showed small net gains of 5 to 8 points. Small traders either of buying or selling were able to influence prices owing to the narrowness of the market.

While the course of the stock market has been fairly steady, it influenced cotton prices less than might have been expected.

The demand for spot cotton has been very moderate during the past week, the daily sales at southern markets running far behind the corresponding dates last year. Holiday influences have no doubt had much to do with the falling off in the demand, particularly that from domestic mills.

Traders are beginning to speculate on the prospects for the next week and are watching with interest results of the conferences already held at Memphis and to be held during the coming month at Jackson, Miss. It is not believed by the trade that either legislative measures or mere resolutions calling for a concerted act in acreage will have much definite result.

The south has found no substitute for cotton as a cash crop and farmers are expected to plant as usual as much as they can finance, the traders believe.

Exports during the past week have continued to run fairly well, but a large stock of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at gulf ports points to rather large end of the month shipment. The excess in exports compared with last season is slowly dwindling.

The following shows the high, low and closing sales in the futures market during the past week compared with a year ago.

	High	Low	Close	Last
January	5.94	5.74	5.87	6.31
March	6.08	5.83	5.95	6.42
May	6.21	5.96	6.07	6.61
July	6.34	6.08	6.20	6.78
October	6.54	6.27	6.42	7.00

Sugar Consumption Off.

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—Sugar consumption in the United States during October, 1932, amounted to 436,676 tons, compared with 488,307 in the corresponding period of 1931. This is a decrease of 10.631 tons, or 2.38 per cent, according to E. W. Dyer & Co., sugar economists and brokers. Distribution of sugar in the United States for the first 10 months of this year totaled 4,807,385 tons. This is a decrease of 160,639 tons, or 3.18 per cent, from the first 10 months of 1931.

General Business Upturn Is Anticipated This Month

Last Week Activity Is Slow, But Executives Expect Early Rebound From Holiday Dullness.

By FRANK H. MCCONNELL.
NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Business eased through the final week of 1932 with activity narrowed generally to the least breadth of a depressed year, but with a majority of executives anticipating a natural January rebound from the usual holiday dullness.

Steel production dipped to or around the previous July bottom, Iron Age reporting operations at 13 per cent of capacity and Steel estimating that at 12 per cent, but with both looking for an expansion right after the year-end holiday. "The industry embarks upon the first quarter confident that it is on the threshold of a period of moderate recovery," said Steel.

The National Electric Light Association reported power production of 1,554,473,000 kilowatt hours for the week ended December 24 against 1,563,884,000 the preceding week. The carload figures for the same week will not be made public until tomorrow. Against loadings of 516,796 in the week ended December 17, Wall Street estimates placed the December 24 week's figures at about 500,000 cars.

The weekly trade reviews did not gloss over the fact that, as one reported, "the past Christmas season will probably go down in business history as the poorest on record."

Automobile production was probably the best sustained of the major industries. Manufacturers were preparing new 1933 models and it was estimated that December output would approximate 110,000 cars.

Commodity prices continued to drift, some indices registering new lows for the year.

BOND MART GAINS AS YEAR IS ENDED

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The bond market during the past week cheerfully completed the burial of 1932, and with sentiment apparently much improved, stepped blithely into the arms of 1933.

In addition to the heaviest trading in several months, the market recorded the most substantial gains since last August. Various dealers pointed out, however, that the final week's spurt was customary and due partly to the relaxation of tax selling and institutional "window dressing."

Not only did the highest grade investment loans hold around their highest levels of the year, but speculative levels of all categories jumped several points in the closing sessions. Buoyant rallies of some of the rails and industrials were especially noticeable, while a number of the secondary utilities recovered some of their previous losses.

The economic situation was little changed and international political maneuvers were cloaked in uncertainty. The war debt problem for the moment had its focus turned to the wall, but investors generally realized it was still an important factor. Business and financial leaders were extremely cautious in broadcasting their predictions for the new year, although the consensus seemingly was that "the worst is over."

OUTLOOK BRIGHTER FOR U. S. BUSINESS AS 1933 IS OPENED

Changes in Economic Structure Expected To Bring Slow But Certain Return to Normalcy.

American business and industry, bloody but unbowed after many months of grueling punishment due to long depressed economic conditions, looks to the new year with renewed hope in a cautious expectation, steady improvement and a slow but certain return to prosperity.

From every corner of the nation, at the turn of the year, come expressions of freshened confidence that projected changes in the world and American economic structure, together with the prospective change in the nation's leadership, will bring about immensely improved conditions before the close of 1933.

Varied are the solutions and panaceas offered to bring these things to pass, and each, in turn, is being given critical attention and serious consideration. Leaders, however, look chiefly to a democratic congress to adopt such measures as will insure ultimate return to normalcy.

Farm relief, legalization of beer and prohibition repeal, tariff modification, federal economies, the war debt situation, armament, unemployment, and numerous other questions are viewed by business leaders as factors which must be determined during the year's quest for better times.

1933, and oldest daily in the state of New Jersey, suspended publication today. Announcement to this effect was made in a front-page box signed by Joseph J. Miller, president and other directors of the company.

The announcement expressed the hope that financial support may soon be forthcoming to enable the paper to resume publication.

TARZAN THE UNTAMED

No. 169

After Olga, one by one came the nine apes. Searching quickly she discovered a spear and with this to lead the attack, she again approached the entrance. . . Tarzan of the Apes and Lieutenant Jerry Cecil were securely bound to the stakes.

Neither had spoken for some time. Now the Englishman turned his head to see his companion in misery. Tarzan stood straight against his stake. Only indifference showed on his countenance, though both men knew of the torture to come.

"Good-bye, old top," whispered the young lieutenant. Tarzan turned his eyes in the direction of the other and smiled. "Good-bye," he said. "If you want to get it over in a hurry, inhale the smoke and flames immediately."

"Thanks," replied the aviator, and though he made a wry face, he drew himself up very straight and squared his shoulders. The hideously painted warriors were forming slowly now to commence the dance of death!
